

Figure 1

This etch-control circuit produces supersharp microneedles by terminating the etching process at precisely the right time.